PT. AKSESINDO CAKRAWALA PERKASA

ABOUT US

PT. Aksesindo Cakrawala Perkasa is an elite accreditation team holding accreditation validated by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS), the sole accreditation body for the United Kingdom appointed by its government. UKAS evaluates organizations that provide certification, testing, inspection, and calibration services. Our UKAS accreditation supports our competence, integrity, and capability to offer certification, testing, and training services. This accreditation ensures that every ISO certificate we issue will be recognized throughout the global supply chain and for tender purposes.

We employ a collaborative and supportive approach where our clients can receive as much assistance as they need. We simplify the entire process, ensuring it remains straightforward and stress-free for you.

Why do you need training service?

- You want to enhance the operation of your current system
- You need to upgrade standards to the latest version
- You want to improve skills within the company to effectively manage the system

IMPARTIALITY COMMITTEE

We ensure our compliance with International Standard Organization requirements through our own external audit controls. PT. Aksesindo Cakrawala Perkasa has established an Impartiality Committee (IC), tasked with ensuring all stakeholder interests are represented. Committee members are selected to reflect the industry sectors where we conduct certification work and the types of client organizations we typically support.

CERTIFICATION

ISO 9001

International standards for Quality Management Systems (QMS)

Certification shows that you adhere to international best practices and can be trusted for business dealings. This helps you to qualify as a 'preferred supplier'.

ISO 14001

International standards for Environmental Management Systems

These standards support your efforts to reduce waste and energy consumption, as well as mitigate environmental impacts. ISO 14001 also helps you comply with increasingly stringent environmental legal requirements.

ISO 45001

International standards for Occupational Health and Safety Management Systems (OHSMS)

By implementing these standards, you can protect the health, safety, and well-being of employees, visitors, and anyone affected by your organization's activities. It is also an excellent way to establish legal compliance.

ISO 27001

International standards for Information Security Management Systems (ISMS) and assist you in overcoming these challenges.

These standards enable you to control the security of information in any form it is stored and transmitted—on paper, electronically, through mail or email, displayed in film, or even spoken in conversation.

CERTIFICATION

ISO 37001

International standards for Anti-Bribery Management Systems (ABMS)

Anti-bribery management systems provide guidance to management for eliminating any actions that lead to forms of bribery, whether financial or non-financial.

ISO 22000

Internationally recognized Food Safety Management Systems (FSMS)

These systems apply to all organizations within the food chain and help ensure the quality, safety, and reliability of products from 'farm to fork.' Thus, they are also applicable to farmers and primary producers, processors, manufacturers, distributors, wholesalers, and retailers.

ISO 20000

International IT standards

Enables companies to demonstrate excellence and prove best practices in IT management. These standards provide a framework for service providers to monitor, measure, and review their service management processes.

ISO 50001

International standard for Energy Management Systems (EnMS)

Energy Management Systems help your organization understand energy usage, reduce environmental impact, and ultimately enhance your profitability.

CLIENT Testemonial

"By following the ISO standardization process with ACP, we have realized the need to standardize everything beyond current standards. This realization has prompted us to strive for greater achievements in quantity, quality, and efficiency, ultimately aiming for higher standards. As a result, sales have increased, internal processes have improved, and the hard and soft skills of our team leaders have grown, allowing us to implement these improvements across our entire office staff.

In the third year since adopting ISO standards, we have established new reporting standards. Documentation is now not only in written and printed form but also digitally, which has significantly enhanced communication with management through visual means. Even the simplest reports are now shared digitally, including through platforms like WhatsApp (WA). This digitalization has brought about substantial changes, ensuring well-organized and accurate documentation. This freedom enables us to continuously enhance our company's standards, thereby improving quality, quantity, and efficiency. We look forward to continuing our partnership with ACP in implementing further ISO standards."
